Award nomination highlights contribution 355th Wing makes to Tucson community

By Stephanie Ritter 355th Wing Public Affairs

While the primary mission involves planes soaring high above the Sonoran Desert, members of Davis-Monthan Air Force Base also have their hands and hearts deeply rooted in the surrounding community.

In an effort to be a good steward to the local community, members of D-M have invested not only their dollars but their time with numerous nonprofit organizations in Tucson.

"D-M is giving time back to a community that greatly supports the base and its mission," said Robin Perry, 355th Wing management analyst and D-M volunteer. "A community needs the efforts of many to help make it a great place to live. D-M does this through their actions by contributing not only through financial resources but also through its people. Without the support of D-M, the community would not be the same."

While many feel such an investment is an essential part of the day-to-day mission of the base, it is a combination of these selfless acts that has lead to the 355th Wing's nomination for the 2004 National Philanthropy Day Award.

The Association of Fundraising Professionals sponsors an annual award program in order to recognize individuals and organizations whose achievements have made an impact on

Ensure votes count

With only 137 days left until the general election, it is important that all members know the key steps and tools to ensuring that every vote is counted. Generally, all U.S. citizens, 18 years or older, are eligible to vote.

The following is a list published by the Federal Voting Assistance Program to ensure members know how to make their absentee votes count during the 2004 general election.

- ◆ Start by contacting your Unit/Embassy/ Organization Voting Assistance Officer for help in absentee registration and voting.
- ◆ Apply for an absentee ballot using the hard copy or on-line versions of the FPCA.

 ◆ Make sure the local election official has your
- \blacklozenge Make sure the local election official has your current mailing address.
- ◆ Sign and date all election materials.
- ◆ Fulfill your state's witness/notary requirements (if required).
- ◆ Ensure the ballot or FPCA is postmarked.
- ◆ Register to vote and request your ballot in a timely manner, no later than September.
- ◆ Mail the ballot no later than Oct. 15.
- ♦ Those overseas should use the Federal Write In Absentee Ballot if the State absentee ballot does not arrive in time to meet the deadline

Visit the FVAP's Web site at www.fvap.gov for information on the absentee registration and voting process. The FVAP provides answers to almost any voting related question 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

Base induction ceremony

Concern: I attended an Induction Ceremony recently and was curious to know why all promotes were not recognized at the ceremony. I have an individual who put on technical sergeant who was not recognized at the ceremony due to the fact that he wasn't being inducted into a particular pier.

Response: Thank you for your interest in developing and nurturing our Airmen. Every month, 355th Wing leadership acknowledges the most significant promotions in our enlisted Airmen -- new staff sergeants to the NCO corps, our new master sergeants into the senior NCO corps, as well as our newest chief master sergeants. The ceremony is an induction into a higher level of leadership and responsibility that each of the individuals are stepping into.

While we encourage units to recognize all promotees, the Induction Ceremony is a time for us to focus on the achievement and increased level of responsibility our Airmen assume as they step up and meet significant milestones. This is just one of many important events that we pride ourselves on developing and nurturing our Airmen at all stages of their career.

Col. Larry Stutzriem, 355th Wing commander, and Sam the Coyote officially open the outdoor recreation pool for summer fun for all D-M members.

Supporting each other and working together to provide the best programs and services is a goal for all D-M people.

Ideas, suggestions, comments, concerns and kudos are important to make improvements.

The best way to pass along a comment or to get an answer to a concern is to contact the agency chief or functional managers listed here. Still no solution? The Commander's Corner phone line is 238.4747.

An e-mail can also be sent to: 355th Wing.CommandersCorner@dm.af.mil.

Callers must leave their name, phone number and a message. They will receive a prompt reply in writing or by telephone. We will honor caller confidentiality, but sometimes we need to contact callers to gather additional information. If a concern is of general interest to the base populace, the response may be published in the Desert Airman. Anonymous calls may not be published.

Team D-M Mission Spotlight —

The 755th Aircraft Maintenance Squadron provides warfighting commanders with combat ready EC-130H COMPASS CALL aircraft to expeditiously execute information warfare operations.

In addition, they plan and execute all on-equipment actions for 14 EC-130H and one TC-130H aircraft, including launch, recovery, scheduled inspections, servicing and component replacement. The 755th AMXS conducts all maintenance training, aircrew debriefing and supply functions.

The 755th AMXS is part of the 55th Electronic Combat Group stationed at D-M, belonging to the 55th Wing at Offut Air Force Base, Neb.

Airman Kelly Cameron, crew chief in the 755th Aircraft Maintenance Squadron, performs routine maintenance on one of the C-130s the squadron maintains.

The 355th Wing Public Affairs staff prepares all editorial content for the Desert Airman. The editor will edit or re-write material for clarity, brevity or to conform with the Associated Press Style Guide, local policy and Air Force style as required by Air Force Instruction 35-101. Contributions for the Desert Airman can be made directly to the 355th Wing Public Affairs Office, Building 2300, Suite 2054, or through e-mail to desert.airman@dm.af.mil. The editor can be reached at 228-5092. Submission deadlines are Wednesday, nine days, prior to publication date. If submissions are publishable, they run based on space available and priority. sible D-M will be subject to an external Environmental Safety and Occupational Health Compliance Assessment Management Program Assessment which will be conducted Monday through June 25.

Maintaining ESOHCAMP compliance is the responsibility for every member of the Desert Lighting Team from the lowest ranking Airman to the highest ranking officer, because all areas within the Davis-Monthan fence are vulnerable to inspection by the ESOHCAMP assessment team.

The base is required to comply to all federal and state environmental laws and may be fined for any violations.

A few items the ESOHCAMP assessment team will inspect include: the maintenance of eyewash/shower stations, dumpsters being left open, compressed gas cylinder storage, the storage of hazardous materials and recyclables being thrown in the trash.

Base family housing residents must also comply to ESOHCAMP standards. To help make compliance easier for housing residences, the hazardous materials pharmacy team has a program to collect household hazardous wastes. The HAZMARK office can be contacted at 228-5588 for more information on this program.

For more information on potential ESOHCAMP violations in the work place, contact Tim Jackson at 228-5897.

Airmen receive UCMJ punishment

◆ A senior airman from the 357th Fighter Squadron received a reduction to airman first class for failing to pay a debt and making a false statement (regarding that debt). These were violations of Articles 134 and 107 of the Uniform Code of Military Justice. (Editor's note: Information courtesy of the 355th Wing Judge Advocate Office. The same offense can result in different punishments for each offender. The offender's commander considers several factors when determining punishment, which includes: the offender's service record, previous incidents, seriousness of the offense and impact on unit discipline, cohesion and morale.)

230 Airmen were saved from the consequences of driving under the influence by the Airmen Against Drunk Driving Program since Dec. 31.

Davis-Monthan scores high marks on 2004 Drinking Water Report

2004 Drinking Water Consumer Confidence Report for Davis-Monthan Air Force Base

What is a Consumer Confidence Report and why am I receiving it?

This is a report on the quality of water delivered by D-M to its residents. It is mandated by the Environmental Protection Agency under the "Consumer Confidence Reporting Rule" of the federal Safe Drinking Water Act. Public water systems, which supply drinking water must publish a report every year by July 1. This report presents information on the source of our water, its constituents and the health risks associated with contaminants.

How is the quality of drinking water on D-M?

We are pleased to report that our drinking water is safe and meets federal and state requirements. Davis-Monthan routinely monitors over 200 constituents in your drinking water according to federal and state laws. The table shows the analytical results of constituents that have exceeded detectable limits throughout our continuous monitoring for the period of Jan. 1, 2000 to April 17, 2004. As you will see in the table, only the Nitrate and Asbestos contaminants exceeded their detection limits but none have exceeded the maximum contaminant level set forth by federal and state regulations. As many of you know, we have had some challenges with the drinking water quality in our new CDC. This resulted from interior plumbing problems and were not related in any way to the quality of our base drinking water.

Where does my drinking water come from and why are there contaminants in the wa-

The sources of drinking water (both tap water and bottled water) include rivers, lakes, streams, ponds, reservoirs, springs and wells. As water travels over the surface of the land or through the ground, it dissolves naturally occurring minerals and, in some cases, radioactive material, and can pick up substances resulting from the presence of animals or from human activity. Microbial contaminants, such as viruses and bacteria, that may come from sewage treatment plants, septic systems, agricultural livestock operations and wildlife. Inorganic contaminants, such as salts and metals, which can be naturally occurring or result from urban stormwater runoff, industrial or domestic wastewater discharges, oil and gas production, mining or farming. Pesticides and herbicides, which may come from a variety of sources such as agriculture. urban stormwater runoff and residential uses. Organic Chemical Contaminants, including synthetic and volatile organic chemicals, which are by-products of industrial processes and petroleum production, and can also come from gas stations, urban stormwater runoff and septic systems. Radioactive contaminants can be naturally occurring or be the result of oil and gas production and mining activities. In order to ensure that tap water is safe to drink, the EPA prescribes regulations that limit the amount of certain contaminants in water provided by public water systems. Food and Drug Administration regulations establish limits for contaminants in bottled water, which must provide the same protection for public health. More information about contaminants and potential health effects can be obtained by calling the Environmental Protection Agency's Safe Drinking Water Hotline at 1-800-426-4791.

Source water assessment and its availability

The Davis-Monthan drinking water system is totally independent from the city of Tucson's water supply. Our ground water is drawn from production wells throughout the base. The well water is introduced to the base distribution system through eight points of entry. These eight POEs are where the majority of samples are collected for analysis and then compared to EPA and State of Arizona standards. In order to ensure that tap water is safe to drink, the EPA prescribes regulations which limit the amount of certain contaminants in water provided by public water systems. This testing is conducted by the 355th Aerospace Medicine Squadron, Bioenvironmental Engineering Flight. Food and Drug Administration regulations establish limits for contaminants in bottled water, which must provide the same protection for public health. Drinking water, including bottled water, may reasonably be expected to contain at least small amounts of some contaminants. The presence of contaminants does not necessarily indicate that water poses a health risk.

Do I need to take special precautions?

Some people may be more vulnerable to contaminants in drinking water than the general population. Immuno-compromised persons such as persons with cancer undergoing chemotherapy, persons who have undergone organ transplants, people with HIV/AIDS or other immune system disorders, some elderly and infants can be particularly at risk from infections. These people should seek advice about drinking water from their health care providers. The EPA and the Centers for Disease Control guidelines on appropriate means to lessen the risk of infection by Cryptosporidium and other microbial contaminants are available from the Safe Water Drinking Hotline at 1-800-426-4791. It is our opinion based on analysis that these people are not at risk on D-M, but these people should seek advice about drinking water from their health care providers.

Who do I contact for local information?

If you have questions concerning the content of this report, or would like to review sampling data, please contact the Bioenvironmental Engineering Flight at 228-5369. If you have questions about the base water distribution system or how water is supplied to you, please contact the 355th Civil Engineering Squadron, Utility Element at 228-4167.

Water Quality Table

The table below lists all of the drinking water contaminants we detected that are applicable for the calendar year of this report. The presence of contaminants in the water does not necessarily indicate that the water poses a health risk. Unless otherwise noted, the data presented in this table is from testing done in the calendar year of the report. The EPA or the State requires us to monitor for certain contaminants less than once per year because the concentrations of these contaminants do not change.

NA: not applicable ND: Not detected

NR: Monitoring not required, but recommended.

Important Drinking Water Definitions

MCLG: Maximum Contaminant Level Goal: The level of a contaminant in drinking water below which there is no known or expected risk to health. MCLGs allow for a margin of safety.

MCL: Maximum Contaminant Level: The highest level of a contaminant that is allowed in drinking water. TT: Treatment Technique: A required process intended to reduce the level of a contaminant in drinking water. AL: Action Level: The concentration of a contaminant which, if exceeded, triggers treatment or other requirements which a water system must follow Variances and Exemptions: State or EPA permission not to meet an MCL or a treatment technique under certain conditions.

MRDLG: Maximum residual disinfection level goal. The level of a drinking water disinfectant below which there is no known or expected risk to health. MRDLGs do not reflect the benefits of the use of disinfectants to control microbial contaminants.

MRDL: Maximum residual disinfectant level. The highest level of a disinfectant allowed in drinking water. There is convincing evidence that addition of a disinfectant is necessary for control of microbial contaminants. MNR: Monitored Not Regulated

MPL: State Assigned Maximum Permissible Level

Cyber Connection room re-opens

Story and photos by 2nd Lt. Beth Tucker 355th Wing Public Affairs

The newest computer and internet technology is now available, at no cost, for the Desert Lightning team. The "Cyber Connection" room in the D-M Community Center, provides base members and families the opportunity to research endless topics, as well as keep in touch with friends and loved ones with the click of a button.

While flooding didn't look to be a positive for the community center in February, the renovations and upgrades to replace what was lost has been a benefit.

"The roof of the community center was being replaced when a severe thunderstorm came through and left two inches of standing water in the room," said Frances Pientack, D-M Community Center director. "The carpet, computers and even the base of the desks were ruined."

After researching the best options for the room, 12 new Gateway computers with Windows XP and "all the ins and outs of computers you need," were installed and are now up and running, according to Ms. Pientack.

The computers are connected to the Internet through the Air Combat Command Quality of Life network system. This system allows members to use programs, such as instant messengers, or check e-mail through non-government accounts, that cannot go through work stations.

Ms. Pientack has seen many uses of the computers by a range of individuals from the base. From accessing LeaveWeb and MyPay, to emailing deployed friends and family members to instantly talking with others on the opposite side of the world, the computers have an endless possibility of services.

The Cyber Connection room is available seven days a week in the D-M Community Center located in Building 4120 on Fifth Street. D-M members may use the computers Mondays through Fridays, from 7 a.m. to 9 p.m. and Saturday and Sundays from noon to 6 p.m. D-M members may use the computers. Users are requested to limit use to 30 minutes between 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. and one hour at other times.

While using the Cyber Connection room, Ms. Pientack says people should keep in mind the other resources available at the community center, including coffee, drinks, snacks and meals available at Stormy's Café.

society, nationally and internationally according to their Web site (http://www.nsfre.org/).

"There are numerous organizations in America whose only purpose is to increase the well-being of humanity," said Jackie Abell, 355th Mission Support Squadron Family and Work Life consultant. "Recognition by the National Philanthropy Day Award is an honor bestowed to an institution that displays their love of humanity through continuous endeavors such as charitable aid and endowments."

The 355th Wing was nominated for the association's highest honor, the Awards for Philanthropy, because its members have established a record of charitable support to organizations and causes within the community that have changed the lives of many people.

"The men and women in blue are part of a model that is dedicated to defending democracy not only for themselves, but for each of us,' stated Charlotte Harris, D-M 50 member, in the award nomination packet. "This model sets a desired example for philanthropic involvement as their focus is betterment of this country and each citizen. They are a model of caring citizens."

As wingmen of the community, this is just one way the installation provides moral support to Tucson. But part of being model citizens involves not only giving to the community individually but nurturing other Airmen to do the same so the cycle continues.

"It is the job of the men and women of D-M to mentor their peers and subordinates, not only professionally but personally." said Ms. Abell. D-M troops are part of a model that is dedicated to defending democracy. As they become involved, most begin to see the big picture and learn where they fit in and not only defend democracy but focus on the betterment of the country and each citizen."

Several of the volunteer projects members of the wing are involved in include Santa's in Blue, replanting of tress at Mt. Lemmon, Big Brothers/Big Sisters, Mobile Meals, installation of cable at St. Augustine Catholic High School, Community Food Bank, United Way of Tucson, Habitat for Humanity, Can Do Crew and more.

It is through programs like this D-M is letting Tucson know the base is here and willing to do what they can to help the community.

"D-M is a wingman for the community because we show through these volunteer opportunities that we are not letting the community fall to the wayside," said Tech. Sgt. Heidi Gygi, 355th Wing Manpower analyst and D-M volunteer. "Members of D-M show the community that > we are here for them just as they are here for us. We are not just taking up space in Tucson, we are all family."

> While being nominated for the award is an honor, those who volunteer do it from the heart and not to receive any special recognition.

> "We have an opportunity to interact with the local population and provide a service that is much appreciated," said Lt. Col. David Eisenstadt, 355th Wing Manpower

Office chief and D-M Mobile Meals volunteer coordinator. "Our volunteers take great satisfaction in being able to contribute to the Tucson community. The service we provide, delivering meals, had such a direct impact on the quality of life of our customers we can't help but feel good about our contributions."

Those interested in getting involved with any on or off base volunteer opportunities can contact the family support center at 228-5690.

Vehicle maintenance keeps operations rolling

Story and photos by Master Sgt. Andrew Gates 455th Expeditionary Operations Group Public Affairs

AFGHANISTAN - The flight line in Afghanistan is a hive of activity as vehicles swarm about accomplishing various tasks - a jammer carrying bombs here, a loader removing needed cargo from a C-17 over there.

Should one of those vehicles break, it could have catastrophic consequences for the mission – so ensuring that doesn't happen, or minimizing the impact if it does, is a top priority of operations here.

That's the mission of the 455th Expeditionary Logistics Readiness Squadron vehicle maintenance flight. Put simply, "we fix broken trucks," said Staff Sgt. Christopher Logan, 455th ELRS mechanic.

Although the basic premise is simple, carrying out that mission is not. A harsh environment and long supply chain can make working on any one of the 149 vehicles a challenge.

"We are able to fix any vehicle," said Sergeant Logan, deployed from Davis-Monthan. "We can do simple tasks like replacing headlights and tail lights, or we can do more difficult ones such as replacing engines."

Each member of the maintenance team has general knowledge about vehicle mechanics and is able to fix anything that rolls, or is towed, through their doors.

"Once you have the basics, everything else falls into place," said Sergeant Logan.

Even with those basics, working on equipment ranging from refuelers and de-icers to all-terrain vehicles can be somewhat challenging, because the environment is tough on vehicles. The dusty conditions quickly clog air filters, while rough, rocky roads play havoc on tires, he continued.

While keeping the vehicles running is extremely important in a desert environment, keeping track of those vehicles and ensuring that each vehicle comes in for scheduled maintenance is also important.

Claude Armstrong, 455th Expeditionary Logistics Readiness Squadron, disconnects the power steering reservoir on a Highly Mobile Multi-Wheeled Vehicle in the vehicle maintenance flight. Sergeant Armstrong is deployed from Davis-Monthan Air Force Base. (Below) Staff Sgt. Christopher Logan, 455th ELRS, tops off the engine oil after replacing the engine in a forklift, he is also deployed from Davis-Monthan.

"We have to report what percentage of our vehicles are in commission to higher headquarters," said Airman 1st Class Matthew Campbell, 455th ELRS scheduler, deployed from Ramstein Air Base, Germany. "Keeping close track of maintenance helps us keep our in-commission rate well above headquarters standards."

Once the part comes in, the vehicle is scheduled for re-

Since it can take up to three weeks to get parts, the vehicle maintenance team often has to use the joint environment here to their advantage.

"We have to do a lot of horse trading," said Master Sgt. Claude Armstrong, 455th ELRS NCO in charge of vehicle maintenance, deployed from D-M. "We can use the supply system to get our parts, but often other units on base have them. We have pretty good rapport with them, so everyone is able to get their missions done as quickly as possible."

At times, though, even trying to get crucial parts through other organizations don't work. Then, the maintenance team has to improvise to get the vehicle running. "You have to make stuff work," said Sergeant Logan. "The vehicles are crucial to keeping the mission going."

Making "stuff" work keeps the job exciting for the team. "Our first priority is ensuring any improvised repairs will not make the vehicle unsafe," said Sergeant Armstrong. "If it will, we won't do the repair and we remove the vehicle from service until we can get the right part. When we are able to repair the vehicle, though, the guys here have done some outstanding work to get a vehicle repaired and back on the line."

For example, a few weeks ago, the fuel system broke in a bucket truck being used to make runway repairs. Staff Sgt. Michael Jones, another 455th ELRS mechanic, deployed from Lackland Air Force Base, Texas, using some ingenuity and parts from a different vehicle, was able to fabricate a new fuel system for the truck, saving a lot of time.

"We couldn't wait for the part to come in," said Sergeant Armstrong. "If Sergeant Jones hadn't rebuilt the system, then civil engineers couldn't pour concrete for the runway.'

The team also completes work on K-loaders, the equipment used to unload cargo from various aircraft. Most of the loaders are more than 30 years old, and yet the team keeps them running smoothly - which is important since the cargo aircraft bring in the supplies and parts needed in other organizations to keep the mission running, said Sergeant Armstrong.

"What I do is very necessary to keeping the mission going," said Sergeant Logan. "Anyone who sits in a vehicle needs us."

Sergeant Jones agrees, "Doing this job gives me an incredible sense of accomplishment and a great sense of pride. I can see how I impact the rest of the unit."

Members from the 43rd Electronic Combat Squadron recently returned to D-M from deployment. While deployed, the team provided tactical air, ground and naval operations support by confusing the enemy's defenses and disrupting its command and control capabilities.

Air Force to extend Air Expeditionary Force cycle

By Gen. John Jumper Air Force Chief of Staff

For the past 12 years, our Air Force has adapted to the demands of a changing world. Beginning in the early 1990s, we developed composite wings, expeditionary organizations and crisis-response packages that allowed us to rapidly deliver combat capability to Combatant Commanders.

In 1998, we formalized the structure into 10 Air Expeditionary Force packages. These responsive air and space capabilities allow us to present forces in a consistent manner and conduct military operations across the spectrum of conflict. Throughout the late 1990s, our AEF concept of operations has proven itself time and again. Even with the high demands of Operations Enduring Freedom and Iraqi Freedom, our AEFs surged to support the Combatant Commanders' warfighting and deterrence missions, employing nearly eight AEFs of combat forces.

When major air and space operations diminished last year, we began the process of reestablishing the AEF battle rhythm. Our reconstitution target was March of this year, but the continued demands of global operations, additional contingencies in other theaters and a tasking to support Army operations with 2,000 of our expeditionary combat support forces required us to reassess our planning assumptions, and to adjust our AEFs to a new mission set.

Simply put, the demands on our deployable forces have not diminished and are not expected to decline for some time. We have a new rotational requirement for nearly 20,000 Airmen — about three times the demand prior to Sept. 11, 2001. Further, the Air Force Component Commander in the Central Command area of operations has asked us to deploy people for longer tour lengths to allow greater continuity for expeditionary commanders in the field. To adapt to this new set of circumstances, I've directed a change to the AEF rotational cycle and have asked our Major Commands to expand the pool of deployable Airmen in each AEF.

Beginning with AEF Cycle 5 in September 2004, the baseline deployment will be 120 days vice 90, and the AEF cycle will change from a 15-month rotational cycle to a 20 month cycle. We will continue to expect that each Airman will deploy only once during each cycle, although some stressed specialties will deploy longer, and in greater frequency, until manpower levels are adjusted or the theater requirements diminish. For those already deployed in AEFs 7/8 (March to May) and those deploying in AEF 9/10 (June to August), it is our intent to stick to our 90-day deployment cycle. For those identified to deploy in AEF 1/2 (September to November), you should prepare to be gone a minimum of four months. This evolution of the AEF is not a temporary adjustment. More appropriately, it is recognition of new demands around the world for air and space power.

It is important to remember several fundamental principles regarding our AEF concept of operations. First, we are not changing the basic composition of each AEF; each will continue to provide about five AEWs and six AEGs of capability during each vulnerability period. Our low density/high demand units will continue to follow Department of Defense-approved deployment guidelines. Finally, Air Force global mobility forces will continue to follow our AEF Presence Policy, with mobility aviation units postured in multiple AEFs to support the United States Transportation Command mission and other combatant commander needs.

The 20-month cycle will continue to provide commanders and Airmen the ability to plan ahead, allowing a sense of predictability while providing greater continuity to the intheater commander. Still, I recognize longer deployments will present challenges to our Reserve Component, possibly affecting the number of ARC volunteers, and requiring selected use of Presidential mobilization authority. We will manage these matters very carefully, ensuring equity and fairness across the Total Force.

In addition to extending tour lengths, it is my intent to expand our pool of deployable Airmen from our current level of about 272,000. I have asked all of our Major Commands to aggressively review the assumptions upon which they exclude Airmen from our AEFs and take immediate steps to maximize those postured in the Air Force Worldwide UTC System and our AEF libraries. The MAJCOMs will posture the maximum number of manpower authorizations into standard UTCs, and if required, we will develop new ones to provide additional expeditionary capabilities. Residual authorizations will be postured into associated UTCs and will be coded to support AEF requirements across the range of military operations.

Let me be perfectly clear — in our Air Force, every Airman is expeditionary, every Airman will know his/her place in the AEF system, and every Airman will be prepared to support the combatant commander, whether deployed, in CONUS via reachback, or employed at home station. If you are wearing the uniform of the United States Air Force, you are a part of the AEF.

We are at war today, and will remain engaged around the globe against a brutal and resilient enemy. Every Airman — Active, Guard, Reserve and civilian — must be focused on our national commitment to the Global War on Terrorism. Our job is to deploy and deal with terrorists wherever they are in the world so we never again have to deal with them on our own soil. You will be the difference between our success and failure in this vital cause. Once again, I want to thank each and every one of you for your dedication, professionalism and service to our nation.

The 607th ACS is subordinate to the 355th Operations Group and the 355th Wing at Davis-Monthan Air Force Base, but is located at Luke Air Force Base, Ariz. The 607th Air Control Squadron conducts formal initial qualification training for air control operations crew personnel in command and control tactics, techniques and procedures. The 607th ACS provides understanding of theater-level execution and increased mission effectiveness through mission crew and aircrew interface. The squadron provides in-garrison radar control to flying units operating in local airspace and operates and maintains radar and communications equipment. Colonel Montgomery assumed command June 11.

The 355th MDOS provides health care for the military community to ensure maximum wartime readiness and combat capability through superb prevention and intervention. The squadron's functions include primary care, pediatric, women's health, surgical, physical therapy, mental health and basic specialty services. Prior to Colonel Graulty's assignment here, she was the Deputy Director, Regional Operations, TRICARE Management Activity, Office of the Secretary of Defense (Health Affairs), Falls Church, Va. Colonel Graulty assumed command of the 355th MDOS June 7.

Sonoran Spotlight

(Editor's note: Sonoran Spotlight is a weekly feature of the Desert Airman that profiles a member (officer, enlisted or civilian) of the Davis-Monthan Air Force Base Desert Lightning community. Members are nominated by their unit commander or first sergeant.)

This week's Sonoran Spotlight is Staff Sergeant Zabrina Dismuke from the 355th Maintenance Operations Squadron. Sergeant Dismuke is the NCO in charge of the commander support staff. According to her supervisor, Master Sgt. Jeffrey DeMoss, she was nominated for the spotlight because, "She ensures outstanding customer services daily to the 160 squadron members and the maintenance group staff. Her professionalism and military appearance are impeccable.

The following are Sergeant Dismuke's responses to a variety of questions.

Hometown: Chicago, Ill. Years of service: Six

Why did you join the Air Force: To go to school for free and get away from home.

Main job responsibilities: To manage our commander's programs as NCOIC of the commanders support staff.

Best aspects of the job: I meet new people daily and I learn something new each day. Career goals: Completing school, promotions, career enhancement by experience, travel and retirement

If you were an Air Force recruiter, what would you tell people: I would tell people that the Air Force has its ups and downs but it is up to you to make the best of everything you are involved with. I enjoy the Air Force because I choose to enjoy it.

Inspiration: I admire my stepmother, Lashea Williams. She makes me want to do my best and keeps me encouraged.

Fit to fight on Armed Forces Cycling Team

By Staff Sgt. Tammie Clark 355th Wing Public Affairs

Passion; it is what drives people to push the limits of their abilities, to hone their talents and to never give up.

When people join the military they may feel they must sacrifice their passions for the sake of their new career, but that is not the case. The military provides many opportunities for service members to develop their skills and to pursue what drives them.

It is important for members to be able to follow their life's dreams while in the service when possible, instead of being forced to choose between the military or following a life ambition, said 1st Lt. Mary Rudy, Armed Forces Cycling Team member stationed at Davis-Monthan.

"Sports in general are essential to maintaining fitness and morale, and it's great to be able to pursue them to as high a level as possible rather than just recreationally to really live up to the core value of 'excellence in all we do," she said.

The lieutenant started biking seriously in 1998, but took some time off before focusing on the sport in 2000. In the time since then she has been able to peddle her way on to the Armed Forces Cycling team. But achieving a membership on the team requires more commitment than just being a weekend warrior; it takes sweat and dedication.

"A typical workout lasts two to six hours with the long workouts being rides through varied terrain and the shorter workouts being either easy recovery rides from races or very hard efforts with speed and power intervals interspersed within the rides," said Lieutenant Rudy.

The physical demands of cycling for the AFC team don't end with the long workouts, the actual competition requires much more from the racers.

"There is no typical competition for road racing really. Races range from two-mile time trials to five-day stage races," said Lieutenant Rudy. "Most of our key races this year have been Stage Races from three to five days, riding 50 to 100 miles a day."

Lieutenant Rudy said being a member of the team also entails, "Travelling to professional level races throughout the country, including a recent Tour of the Gila in Silver City, NM and the Vuelta de Bisbee in Bisbee, Ariz."

"When traveling, we generally participate in several media interviews and meet with key personnel at nearby bases," she said

As members of the service, the team is able to act as ambassadors as they represent members outside of the military through sports programs.

In addition to enhancing physical fitness the lieutenant believes, "Being fit makes people better able to do any job. Endorphins released during exercise are incredible for reducing stress, you have more energy reserves, you learn discipline to finish tough things you would rather not, your immune system is better and you present a physical image that shows you take care of yourself."

In order to maintain a slot on the AFC team, dedication of time is critical.

"The support of my squadron has been incredible in helping me train for the team. Although I had mandatory training at [the Air Force Institute of Technology] that took me away from the bike in the key part of the early season, they have been really flexible in giving me the time to train and catch up with my competitors over the past months. I'm very grateful for that," she said.

"Sometimes it is just hard and the miles are really long - but then you finish a hard race or a fun ride with friends you remember why you do it when you are ready to quit," said Lieutenant Rudy.

Lieutenant Rudy is currently at Redlands, Calif. for the Olympic Trials/Military and U.S. National Championships Road Race, to discover what new level she can push her skills to.

nights and Family Dollar Days Thursdays. Mondays, kids bowl free through Aug. 9 from 10 a.m. until noon. Shoe rentals are $1.25. The Bowling Center is closed Sundays for the summer. For more information, call 228-3461.

"Link Up 2 Golf"

The Blanchard Golf Course is now offering "Link Up 2 Golf," a new player program, which makes learning the game simpler, fun and more affordable than ever before. This industry-wide player development initiative, focuses on bringing more players to the game and keeping them playing for a lifetime. It is designed to attract new golfers to the game, as well as infrequent and former golfers.

"Link Up 2 Golf" provides participants with a solid foundation about the game of golf, including swing mechanics, etiquette, terminology, proper behavior and how to maintain speed of play. For only $99, participants receive eight hours of small group instruction and a variety of on-course playing experiences. Those completing the program will receive a free polo shirt and ball mark repair tool.

For more information about "Link Up 2 Golf," log onto www.linkup2golf.com/ or call the Blanchard Golf Course at 228-3734.

Friday: Ella Enchanted (PG)

At birth, Ella is given the birthright gift of obedience by her fairy Godmother. As a result of this unfortunate circumstance, Ella cannot refuse any command, and is often left at the mercy of unscrupulous personalities. In a bid to regain control of her life, Ella goes on a quest to free herself from this mysterious curse. If she's lucky, she may find love along the way. 1 hour, 35 minutes

Saturday: Kill Bill Vol. 2 (R)

Continuing the story-line which unfolded in "Kill Bill Vol. I," this is a revenge tale of an expert assassin who sets out on a quest to wreak vengeance upon her former employer, Bill, and other members of their assassin circle, for shooting her at her wedding. When this chapter in the story begins, she will have already encountered some of her targets, as she continues battling her way up the chain of command, knowing it will ultimately lead her to her main goal: her chance to kill Bill. 2 hours, 14 minutes

Sunday: Envy (PG-13)

When one of them becomes mindblowingly, stinking rich by selling an invention, a pair of life-long best friends, neighbors and co-workers find their bond breaking as the other guy starts to go crazy with envy. 1 hour, 39 minutes June 18, 2004 Desert Airman 23
